

Anne asked: Anyone want watermelon?
Neighbors close by responded right away...

...then more appeared as the word spread and Anne cut up more watermelon!

The meadow awakens in the early morning

A local photographer used them as backdrop for a special newborn.

The primroses cover the hillside.

Karen stops to say good morning as Pat and Steve have breakfast on the porch.

An 80th birthday calls for a labor-intensive checker-board cake to celebrate.

"Right sizing" continues!!!
The pooled volume merits a site visit by the Shred-Away truck.

Bob joined the community in February and wrote a letter to the Oakcreek Resale Group about his experience.

"There are no wallflowers at Oakcreek. Everybody works, contributing their own skills and interests for the common good. What a wonderful way to grow older while keeping the creative juices flowing."

Sharing Skills Beyond Oakcreek

Mike and Julie go to Haiti

To provide medical care.

Dr. Mike with patient in Haiti

The pharmacy where Julie gives out the medications, explains what they are for and how they are to be taken. Although translators are available, both Mike and Julie have learned to speak Creole so they can work directly with patients.

Memorial Day Celebration

Frank, the grillmaster, works his magic.

A variety of side dishes appear – along with a mini-keg of home brew.

Individual selections are made

Then 47 Oakcreek Members, family and friends are generously fed, topped off with watermelon, a variety of tempting desserts and John's homemade ice cream.

Rather frequently, we get a community wide e-mail from Chuck letting us know that there are bags of cookies in the pan on his front porch - to be claimed on a "first come-first served" basis. Recognizing Chuck's talents, the T-shirt fairy gifted him with the shirt he is wearing.

Visiting grandchildren provide yet another enhancement to community life at Oakcreek!
